CAESARISM DEAD.

The result of the elections yesterday will scarcely surprise any person who has carefully watched the tendencies of the recent canvass. As in 1872 the republicans seemed to carry everything before them by a force and decision apparently irresistible, so yesterday the tide seems to have been almost overwhelming in favor of the democrats. In this city the democratic candidate for Mayor, Wickham, polled a majority of 33,621 over Wales, the regular republican candidate. Wickham's majority over Ottendorfer reached the great number of 46,885, although Wales only exceeded Ottendorfer by 13,621.

General Jones, the republican candidate for Register, beat Hayes, the Tammany nominee, by upward of 11,000. In the general State ticket the democratic gain is even more remarkable. Mr. Tilden, after overcoming the immense majority declared for the republicans in 1872, defeats General Dix by a majority at present estimated at 15,000. Tilden's majority in New York and Kings county is about 48,000. In addition the democrats gain nine Congressional districts, the delegation, as shown by the returns, standing eighteen democrats to fifteen republicans. In the sister States democratic gains are reported. Massachusetts elects Gaston (democrat) by about 4,000 majority. General Butler, the champion of Essex county, has been most ingloriously defeated in his old stronghold. For the first time in many years Massachusetts will have a democratic majority in Congress, the delegation standing six democrats to five republicans. Louisiana has declared against carpetbag rule by defeating almost the entire republican ticket and electing the conservative Treasurer, and five out of the six Congressmen will represent the democratic interests in the next Congress. Arkansas declares for the democrats, as well as the little domain of Delaware. The Georgia delegation in the next Congress will also be democratic with one exception. South Carolina, even, has elected three conservative Congressmen. Judge Poland is defeated by Dennis in Vermont. Bedie, democrat, carries New Jersey by about 4,000. Virginia also leans to the democracy, as does Missouri. The figures from Pennsylvania up to this hour are too indefinite to settle the result of the contest, but the probability is that the republican Lieutenant Governor is elected and the democratic Congressmen increased by about six members. Illinois gives a good republican account, but nothing like the vote of 1872. Tennessee, in addition to electing the democratic Governor, will gain at least six and perhaps seven Congressmen. Altogether, so far as the reports go, yesterday's elections show democratic gains.

THE CANDIDATES ELECTED.

The democrats have carried the State by about 10,000 to 15,000 majority, and the city by 42,000. They elect their full State ticket, and, so far as the meager returns give any indication of the result in the respective districts, make a gain of seven Assemblymen in the State.

Kings county gives about 8,500 majority for Tilden.
